

Safe departures... safe arrivals

Join the Flight Path Protection Team

A team of specialist officers at Birmingham International Airport needs your help to protect the security of our flight paths.

People who live and work beneath these busy pathways can be extra eyes and ears to assist us in keeping flights in and out of the airport safe.

By being vigilant and reporting anything suspicious to our team, you will be helping to minimise the opportunity for terrorist-related incidents.

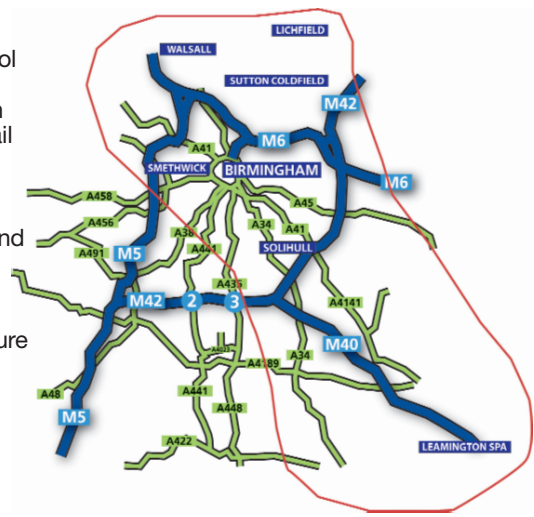

While there is no information to suggest that flights from Birmingham Airport are particularly vulnerable, the national threat assessment is categorised as 'Severe' so we must remain alert to potential dangers. If you are regularly out and about in our patrol area (see map) and would like to join our community register, please fill out and return the form below. Alternatively, you could email your details to us.

We will keep you up to date with any developments affecting flight path security and information about how you can support us.

All major British airports have a community register. Members' details are held on a secure system and not passed to anyone else.

Your assistance will be much appreciated.
